Portfolio Comments

Overall June was another unfavourable month for markets with volatility and uncertainty reigning strong. Global equity lost -2.6% in rand terms while global bonds declined -0.6%. The rand weakened marginally, adding to the negative outcome for offshore holdings. The US FOMC kept rates on hold at its latest meeting, as expected. Fed Chair, Janet Yellen, has reiterated that even once rate hikes commence, US monetary policy will remain extremely accommodative and that the pace of increases would be gradual and well below the long term average. US GDP improved to -0.2%, albeit still in negative territory. US employment continues to improve and the labour market participation rate appears to have bottomed. US inflation remains negligible. In China, the PBOC cut interest rates by 0.25% again, their 4th cut in the last 8 months, in line with the government's intent to prop up growth. This came after the Shanghai Composite Index fell over 20% from its recent high. The Greek debacle has been overshadowing markets as investors are concerned about the risk of possible contagion if Greece leaves the euro and exactly what effect it will have on the rest of Europe and global markets. Greece makes up only 1.8% of Eurozone GDP, making the long term impact likely to be more muted. Local inflation rose marginally to 4.6% with core inflation rising to 5.7%, both still within the 3%-6% target range. Retail sales improved from 2.5% to 3.4%, better than expectations of a drop to 1.8%. The current account deficit also improved in Q1 to 4.8% of GDP, aided by an increase in dividend inflows. The SA Listed Property TR Index lost -0.4%. The spike in bond yields amid the risk-off trade is hurting listed property. Concerns remain around global economic conditions and asset class valuations and as a result we continue to prefer a more diversified approach in the portfolio, across different strategies. We continue to favour Listed Property as an income-generating alternative.
