Portfolio Comments

The past few months were exceptionally difficult for South Africa. The initial trigger was when President Jacob Zuma changed finance ministers twice in only four days which led to anxious investors and caused a public uproar. Over December and January, foreigners sold R5.9 billion worth of local government bonds and R15.6 billion worth of local equities. The rand collapsed, touching a record low of R17.99/US$. The MSCI AC World Index lost -3.58% whereas global bonds gained 4.15% in rand terms. The US Federal Reserve's ("Fed") Open Market Committee met during January and kept the interest rate unchanged after raising rates in December 2015. The Fed will continue to monitor global economic data but it is expected that they will gradually raise interest rates in 2016. Domestic outlook has deteriorated significantly. The South African Reserve Bank ("SARB") revised its GDP forecasts for 2016 and 2017 down to 0.90% and 1.60% respectively from 1.50% and 2.10% previously. Devastating drought in major farming regions led to uncertainty in the food price and in return the headline consumer inflation rose to 5.20% from 4.80%. The SARB is now forecasting that consumer inflation will average 6.80% in 2016. The Monetary Policy Committee ("MPC") hiked interest rates by a further 50 basis points, taking the repo rate to 6.75%. The decision was driven by the rand's sharp decline in recent months and signs of rising food prices. The rand is most likely going to remain under pressure, giving the risk of further downgrades to South Africa's risk rating. We anticipate an interest rate hike at every MPC meeting in the first half of the year. The JSE All Share index ended the month down -3.00% with SA Listed Property losing a further -2.98%. We remain cautiously optimistic about the portfolios, yet our concerns around market valuations and external risks remain. We need to urge investors to remain patient and committed to their chosen investment strategy as negative surprises are possible. We are comfortable with the positioning of the portfolios at this time and continuously monitor the landscape for further opportunities to reduce risk or generate return.
